

Robert J. Lindquist, P.E., Inc.

Orlando ♦ Austin

Construction and Engineering Consulting

Our construction and engineering related services assist contractors, owners or engineers, organize or manage the design build process and provide constructability reviews on projects under design, bidding or on-going; and in reviewing existing projects and forecasting costs at completion.

Design Build

We have extensive hands-on construction experience in organizing and leading the design-build process from the contractor's point of view on large public transportation projects. We organize and direct the process from letter of intent to submittal of the request for proposal.

We can lead the estimating and preliminary design effort and help prepare the proposal package for submittal. We are also available to provide on-going support on successful projects.

Constructability Review

We are experienced in providing constructability reviews on projects under design, in the bidding process or during construction. We will show the cost and time implications of each alternative and make recommendations which will be in the best interest(s) of both the owner and contractor.

Construction Engineering

We review your project construction engineering procedures and make recommendations to improve the reporting of costs and quantities. This in turn improves the forecasting of the results of costs at completion. Accurate information from construction engineers provides more accurate information in the documentation of possible requests for additional compensation or claim.